Flat ceilings were removed in this former home office and attic space eliminated to create a vaulted ceiling. A diamond-pane leaded window was designed and handmade in the style of original windows found throughout the home. The floors and shower walls were laid with honed Carrara marble, coordinating with the Carrara marble countertop of the open-legged double vanity. Above the vanity, chrome inset medicine cabinets provide convenient storage. With its lack of pattern, clean white surfaces, and polished accents, this bathroom offers a tranquil atmosphere with plenty of visual interest.
